

Aspatore Books: Tedrick Housh on Recent Trends in Privacy and Data Security

May 17, 2013

New Legislation Impacting the Protection and Storage of Corporate Data and Customer Information

The law has trouble keeping up with technology. The Founding Fathers drafted the Constitution and the Bill of Rights at a certain time and place - during the last quarter of the eighteenth century, along our eastern seaboard, after the invention of the printing press but before the advent of the telegraph. Today, originalists and pragmatists continue to spar over the application of the Constitution to modern culture and technology. Read more ...