D&O Insurance, Government Investigations, and Requests for Information

D&O insurance coverage is critical to the health of most organizations because it allows directors and officers to sleep better at night knowing that they can serve the company and its shareholders with less concern that their personal assets are at risk from liabilities associated with performance of their fiduciary duties. At a time when investigations can be as expensive to defend as litigation, most corporate decision-makers are unaware of their D&O policies' limitations with respect to government investigations or requests for information. This webinar will open your eyes to these limitations while providing reasonable options for maximizing coverage.
