

Technology

Lathrop GPM offers clients in the technology sector a wealth of knowledge and experience in technical fields as diverse as physics, mechanical engineering, biotechnology, medical science, manufacturing, chemistry, electrical engineering and circuitry, internet infrastructure, computer software, optics, computer hardware peripherals, metallurgy, industrial engineering, global positioning systems and global information system technologies.

Our attorneys have an extremely high rate of success in serving client needs in intellectual property, corporate matters, business transactions and litigation. Our client list includes large and small companies operating in the following areas:

- Biotechnology
- Chemical compounds
- Computer hardware and software
- Electrical devices and circuits
- Global information system technologies
- Global positioning systems
- Household appliances
- Manufacturing methods
- Optical devices
- Management systems
- Mechanical devices
- Medical devices
- Pharmaceuticals
- Telecommunication systems

In addition, our attorneys have decades of experience offering representation for software licensors, licensees, developers, resellers, and distributors in negotiating and drafting agreements that include:

- Mass market licenses
- Individually negotiated license agreements
- Development agreements
- Support and maintenance agreements
- Software escrow arrangements
- Distribution and reseller agreements
- ASP agreements
- Click-through and shrink-wrap agreements
- Sale and assignment of rights to software
- Open-source software compliance programs